RMR Cadet Leadership School

From the Directors

Congratulations on your completion of the Rocky Mountain Region Cadet Leadership School. On average, only 200 cadets graduate from an RCLS each year, and you should be proud to be one of them.

The training you received this weekend will be invaluable during your time with CAP, and will be a stepping stone for all of your future endeavors. Topics covered, such as Officership and Indirect Leadership, are themes consistent with CAP's leadership expectations and will enhance your personal contribution at each of your respective squadrons, wings and CAP as a whole.

Your participation these past three days has shown me your desire for growth and learning opportunities. I strongly encourage you to keep up your commitment to learning and improving, in order to be your personal best.

I would also like to express my gratitude and appreciation to the RCLS Staff, both those who were out front leading and those who assisted behind the scenes. Being part of such an amazing team of CAP Members was truly a rewarding experience and what made this year's RMR/RCLS a success.

Michael Fernandez, Maj, CAP
Director, 2013 Cadet Leadership School
Rocky Mountain Region

I hope each of you are able to take something away from this school, and that each of you learn something new about yourself and your leadership style. Something I have come to realize is your leadership style is always changing. People change, the situation changes, you change. You learn and experience new things. I hope this school provides you with new insight to various leadership principles that you can call upon when faced with different leadership tasks. Continue to challenge yourself and never stop learning!
